SOMETHING NEW

And worthy of the Consideration of Every One who possesses a Watch.

THE AMERICAN WATCH WINDER, an article to any watch winding device ... does not affect the time and can be applied to almost any watch ... when applied it becomes a part of the watch, yet can be detached for the purpose of setting the hands, and readily replaced.

Being a fixture to the watch it is always convenient and can be wound as readily in the dark as in the light. Avoids the necessity of hunting up the key and the perplexity which might result from the loss of it.

It tends to keep the watch clean as it is a well known fact that more dirt and dust reaches the movement of the watch through the use of the common key, than from any other source.

Have one put on your watch and when once used you will never discard it.

THE AMERICAN WATCH WINDER is furnished and applied by all Watch Dealers and Repairers.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 1877.

Republican Caucuses.

The Republican voters of the City of Bangor are requested to meet at the usual places of ward meetings in the several wards, on FRIDAY-EVENING, August 3d, at 7½ o'clock, to select four delegates from each ward to attend the State Convention to be held at Augusta, on THURSDAY, Aug 9th.

ALSO,

At the same time and places to select six delegates from each ward to attend the County Convention to be held at the City Hall, in Bangor, on FRIDAY, the 10th day of August next.

The State and County delegates selected will meet at the Council Room, at City Hall, at 9 P. M. on the 3d, [same evening] to select one delegate at large to attend each of the respective Conventions.

By order of City Committee.

JAMES WOODBURY, Chairman.

Bangor, July 28th, 1877.

Republican State Convention.

The Republicans of Maine and all others who propose to support the candidate of the Republican party in the pending election, are invited to send delegates to a State Convention, to be held in

GRANITE HALL, AUGUSTA,

Thursday, Aug. 9th, 1877, at 11 A. M.,

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, to be supported at the September election, and to attend to such other business as may properly come before the Convention.

The basis of representation will be as follows: Each city, town and plantation is entitled to one delegate and one additional delegate for every seventy-five votes given for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1876. A fraction of forty votes over the number which is entitled to one delegate, will be accorded a delegate. Substitutes can serve only for towns of the county in which they reside.

The Republican State Committee will be in session in the ante room of the Hall at 10 o'clock the morning of the Convention.

By order of the Republican State Committee.

JAMES G. BLAINE, Chairman.

J. O. Smith, Secretary.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican voters of the County of Penobscot are hereby notified to meet by delegates in Convention at the CITY HALL IN BANGOR,

On Friday, the 10th day of August next,

at 10 o'clock A. M.,

to nominate candidates for four Senators, Register of Deeds, County Treasurer, and one County Commissioner, and to transact any other business that may come before the Convention.

BASIS.—Each city, town and plantation, one delegate, and one for every fifty votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1876, one additional delegate, for a fraction of twenty five votes so cast in addition to said fifty votes another delegate, and each town or plantation that cast twenty five votes as aforesaid, and less than fifty, two delegates.

THE REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES TO-NIGHT.

We would remind our readers of the Republican caucuses to be held in the several wards this evening to choose delegates for the State Convention to be held at Augusta next Thursday and for the Penobscot County Convention to be held in this city next Friday. The fact that two citizens of Bangor are candidates for the County Senatorial nomination will doubtless insure a large attendance of their respective supporters, and we hope that interest in the maintenance of Republican principles in Maine will urge our citizens to the caucuses in full numbers to select delegates who will fitly and ably represent the sterling Republican sentiment of the Penobscot Valley, which has never flinched or wavered in the path of duty, whether confronted with treason in the field, or tempted with the influence and patronage of an Administration which cut loose from Republican doctrine and went "swinging round the circle."

The call issued is for a "Republican" convention, and not for the formation of a new party, or the repudiation or condemnation of the glorious Republican record of Maine. We have seen how the honest convictions of the staunch Republicans of a State have been smothered and distorted in Ohio by a policy which demands indorsement of an Administration right or wrong, and without regard to the living principles of a great party. The Republicans of Maine have fought too many battles, won too many triumphs and made too many costly sacrifices in behalf of the great, fundamental doctrines of National supremacy and equal rights for every citizen, to be willing to blot out a single one of the sacred guarantees of liberty and justice for which our loyal brethren were willing to lay down their lives. The Republican Banner is the flag of the Union to-day as it was in the darkest hours of a wicked rebellion, and while its folds are emblazoned with the self-evident truths of the Declaration of Independence, the Republicans of Maine will recognize no other standard.

THE OHIO CONVENTION

A remarkable feature about this remarkable convention is the reticence of the news reports as to the details of the proceedings. The Associated Press sent to the Boston papers only the mere formal record printed by us, which did not even give the balloting. A special to the Herald gives a brief report of what occurred, but its account is unusually condensed, in view of the importance that has been attached to the event by the President's followers. We learn from that report that the first ballot for Governor stood: Alphonso Taft 303; William H. West, 238½; S. S. Warner 94½; Judge Lawrence 37½. On the second ballot West received 365 and was nominated, Judge Taft receiving 278 and Warner 18. The Herald report says of the platform that "the resolution about the labor question, the strikes and Government control of the railroads, is Stanley Matthews' work." We could have guessed as much. And now we want to remark, very quietly and unobtrusively, that if the Convention had refused to indorse President Hayes and with that refusal had put forth such a hodge-podge of inflation and demagogism as a "platform" the "policy" organs would have had a very fine opportunity to jeer at "the sort of people who oppose the President's course." On the whole we think the advocates of simon-pure Republicanism can well afford to let the President have the full benefit of that Ohio "indorsement."

The Chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Mississippi, "spoke in eulogistic terms of President Hayes' Administration," at the Convention on Thursday, which renominated Governor Stone, the man who refused to afford protection to the widow of Judge Chisolm against the assassins who butchered her husband, son and daughter, and who declared it would be bad "policy" to "stir the matter up" by taking any measures against the known assassins. That "indorsement" is even more savory than that of Alex. H. Stephens. A "policy" that suits such "patriots" will hardly be at a premium in Maine.

FALSIFYING THE RECORD.

It is a very significant fact that no journal or speaker, among those who insist that the surrender policy is in harmony with the Cincinnati Platform, has ever deemed it expedient to quote the resolutions of that Platform honestly and fully. On the contrary such papers as the Boston Journal, Harper's Weekly, N. Y. Evening Post and others have deliberately garbled and emasculated the main plank of the platform in the version given their readers, and we find Mr. Grosvenor, the temporary chairman of the Ohio Convention, resorting to the same expedient, of manufacturing a version of his own to suit the exigencies of the Southern Policy. The Cleveland correspondent of the N. Y. Times boasts that he was admitted to the counsels of the Administration managers before the Convention and was permitted to read the speech prepared in advance by the temporary chairman. The correspondent's naive admissions would seem to indicate that the Administration which proclaimed its purpose to "break the political machine," has established a "machine" of its own and pipe-laid the State Convention with a thoroughness that would put the "old machine politicians" to the blush. For instance, the correspondent who writes just after an interview with the "inside ring" and before the delegates had even arrived in Cleveland, parades his knowledge of "the slate" as follows:

There still continue to be many conflicting opinions as to the precise nature of the indorsement which President Hayes and his Administration will receive from the State Convention of Ohio Republicans, which meets here to-morrow. That some kind of a complimentary resolution respecting him will be passed there is no doubt, but there are large numbers of usually well informed persons who express the belief that it will be worded with great care, and will be capable of more than one translation. It can be stated positively that the gentlemen who express these and similar opinions are greatly in error. The resolution which will be presented and passed indorses Mr. Hayes in the heartiest terms.

So it seems that while public sentiment was divided on the subject and the general expectation was that any resolution of indorsement would be carefully qualified, the Times reporter was able to learn "positively" from the Administration managers on the day before the Convention met, just what resolution would be presented and passed. There is certainly a strong flavor of "cut-and-dried" business about this.

The correspondent then proceeds to give advance extracts from Grosvenor's speech, from which we quote a sample of his garbling and misstatement of the National Republican Platform. He said:

The course of the Republican party has challenged the admiration and blessings of the good men of all political faiths and parties. It went before the people in the campaign of 1876, proclaiming that "the permanent pacification of the Southern section of the Union and the complete protection of citizens in the free enjoyment of all their rights is a duty to which the Republican party stands sacredly pledged. (With such a recognition fully accorded, it will be practicable to promote the efforts of the people of those States to obtain the blessings of honest and capable self-government.")

In accepting the nomination of his party upon this platform, Mr. Hayes said: "The moral and material prosperity of the Southern States can be most effectually advanced by a hearty and generous recognition of the rights of all by all, a recognition without reserve or exception."

The correspondent then indorses this extemporised version as follows:

After referring to these and other sentiments expressed by President Hayes and the Republican platform—and by the way, I may note the somewhat significant fact that the resolution adopted at Cincinnati a year ago and quoted above was written by Gov. Chamberlain, of South Carolina.

Now no such resolution as that quoted above was ever adopted at Cincinnati, and it is not conceivable that Mr. Grosvenor could be ignorant of the fact. He gives one sentence from the third resolution of the Platform and adds to it the words we have inclosed in parentheses, which were not "proclaimed" by the Republican party and which are not found in any part of the Republican Platform. To show how systematically the advocates of surrender have distorted, mutilated and misrepresented the National platform, suppressing the declarations which gave vitality and point to its demand for protection of equal rights against the lawlessness of ex-rebels in the South, we quote here the full text of the resolutions adopted at Cincinnati bearing upon the Southern question.

1. The United States of America is a Nation, not a league. By the combined workings of the National and State Governments, under their respective constitutions, the rights of every citizen are secured at home and protected abroad, and the common welfare promoted.

2. The Republican party has preserved these governments to the hundredth anniversary of the Nation's birth, and they are now embodiments of the great truths spoken at its cradle—"that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness: that for the attainment of these ends Governments have been instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed." Until these truths are cheerfully obeyed, or, if need be, vigorously enforced, the work of the Republican party is unfinished.

3. The permanent pacification of the Southern section of the Union, and the complete protection of all its citizens in the free enjoyment of all their rights, is a duty to which the Republican party stands sacredly pledged. The power to provide for the enforcement of the principles embodied in the recent constitutional amendments, is vested by those amendments in the Congress of the United States, and we declare it to be the solemn obligation of the Legislative and Executive departments of the Government to put into immediate and vigorous exercise all their constitutional powers for removing any just causes of discontent on the part of any class, and for securing to every American citizen complete liberty and exact equality in the exercise of all civil, political and public rights. To this end we imperatively demand a Congress and a Chief Executive whose courage and fidelity to these duties shall not falter until these results are placed beyond dispute or recall.

15. We sincerely deprecate all sectional feeling and tendencies. We therefore note with deep solicitude that the Democratic party counts, as its chief hope of success, upon the electoral vote of a united South, secured through the efforts of those who were recently arrayed against the Nation; and we invoke the earnest attention of the country to the grave truth that a success thus achieved would reopen sectional strife and imperil National honor and human rights.

16. We charge the Democratic party with being the same in character and spirit as when it sympathized with treason; with making its control of the House of Representatives the triumph and opportunity of the Nation's recent foes; with reasserting and applauding in the National Capitol the sentiments of unrepentant rebellion; with sending Union soldiers to the rear, and promoting Confederate soldiers to the front; with deliberately proposing to repudiate the plighted faith of the Government; with being equally false and imbecile upon the overshadowing financial question; with thwarting the ends of justice by its partisan mismanagement and obstruction of investigation; with proving itself, through the period of its ascendancy in the Lower House of Congress, utterly incompetent to administer the Government; and we warn the country against trusting a party thus alike unworthy, recreant and incapable.

We have not seen those resolutions published in any of the "policy" papers since the surrender programme was adopted, and we venture to assert that no one of them could be induced to print them in full and in face of the explicit text attempt to argue that they contemplated such abandonment of legal Republican Governments in the South as has been made the distinctive feature of Administration policy. It is certainly very significant that in the President's own State the leading advocate before the State Convention should find it necessary to manufacture a text which was not heard of at Cincinnati and which forms no part of the National Republican Platform.

The editor or speaker who would dare to quote those resolutions correctly and argue that they contemplated or afford any justification of the absolute refusal to extend any National protection of the majority of the citizens of South Carolina and Louisiana in the enjoyment of "complete liberty and exact equality in the exercise of all civil, political and public rights," would be capable of arguing that the Decalogue recommends idolatry, blasphemy, Sabbath-breaking, murder, adultery, stealing, slander, and covetousness. The meaning of the words is as unmistakable in the one case as in the other.

WHO GAVE THE "FALSE IMPRESSION"?

[From the Bangor Commercial, July 31.]

We have known our genial neighbor to do a great many mean things in his brief career as a journalist, but we hardly supposed him capable of taking advantage of the freak of a sub in the absence of the Editor, to create a false impression of the Democratic position of the Belfast Journal on the Temperance question.

* * * *

Bro. Simpson, of the Belfast Journal, has had a rich joke played on him, although it is an old one. His sub, taking advantage of his absence down the bay on a fishing excursion, has put his paper in for genuine Neal Dow Prohibition.

[From the Belfast Journal Aug 2.]

We haven't seen the article that the Commercial alludes to. We have seen one declaring against a license plank in the Democratic platform, and we find it so strongly supported by the better portion of the party, that we see no other course than to let it stand unchallenged. The personal habits of our friend Emery are so thoroughly abstinent, that the attempted rum domination in the party must be very distasteful to him, and we shall not be surprised to hear that he has gone a fishing and left some one else in the editorial chair.

* * * *

Since our paper of last week, in which we declared against the policy of an issue with the prohibitionists of Maine, we have had letters from some of the most prominent Democrats of the State, sustaining our position. The sentiment in the party is even stronger and more extended than we supposed it to be. We do not include in these endorsers of our sentiments Hon. Monroe Young, Mayor of Ellsworth, because he does not so declare himself—but we give his letter below.

"PROTECTION" THAT MEANS SOMETHING.

[What Gov. Hartranft, of Penn., says.]

"If an engineer comes to me and says he is willing and anxious to work, but fears personal injury while tending his train, and he desires a guard, I will send a guard with him—a guard strong enough to protect him—and that guard I'll back with all the power of the State. That's not sending soldiers to run a train at all. It's only a response to a citizen's call for protection—a protection which the laws guarantee to every man, black or white, rich or poor."

"ET TU, BRUTE!"

"If we had our rightful President we should not be distressed by the use of troops," is a remark which few papers besides the Bangor Commercial would have been silly enough to make.—Boston Herald.

Vanderbilt has presented the employes of the N. Y. Central Railroad one hundred thousand dollars for their fidelity to the interests of the road during the strikes. His card will be found elsewhere. Wont our genial neighbor give him h—ll for holding such pleasant relations with his laborers, and giving them money instead of bullets?—Bangor Commercial.

The point of that paragraph must be in its refinement, as we have highly approved Mr. Vanderbilt's course in refusing to make any compromise or change of regulations under threats of striking and riot. The liberal sum appropriated is to be distributed pro rata, not among strikers, but as a reward to employes who were faithful to the Company. He expressly informs them that "men who in time of trial strike or embarrass the operations of the Company by violently preventing officers from doing their duty, can not remain in or reenter its service." He also declares the late reduction of ten per cent on all salaries over $1 per day "a fair and equitable result of the Company's business," and that pay will be advanced when the business of the country will justify it.

We have information of number of "disgruntled" politicians, at present out of office but with a lively desire to get in, who have been perambulating the State seeking to influence caucuses in favor of the "southern policy." The Republican opponents of the course which has already given the South over "solid" to the White League Democracy and which seems to have for its next special object the disorganization of the Republican party in the North, have not deemed it necessary to resort to any "missionary work" among the sturdy Republicans of Maine. When Maine surrenders "principle" to "policy" there will be little left to hope for.

The Commercial is so well posted on Republican affairs that it talks about "the Portland Convention of next Thursday" and informs us what the "Hayes men" could do if they were "disposed."

The vote on the Piscataquis loan bill yesterday was very light, and we imagine that both the friends and opponents of the measure were surprised that the majority against it was so large.

MANY who are suffering from the effect of the warm weather and are debilitated are advised by physicians to take moderate amounts of whisky two or three times during the day In a little while those who adopt this advice frequently increase the number of "drinks" and in time become confirmed inebriates A beverage which will not create thirst for intoxicating liquors and which is intended especially for the benefit of debilitated persons, whether at home or abroad, is Dr Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic Containing the juices of many medicinal herbs, this preparation does not create an appetite for the intoxicating cup The nourishing and life-supporting properties of many valuable natural productions contained in it and well known to medical men have a most strengthening influence A single bottle of the Tonic will demonstrate its valuable qualities. For debility arising from sickness, over exertion or from any cause whatever a wineglassful of Sea Weed Tonic taken after meals will strengthen the stomach and create an appetite for wholesome food To all who are about leaving their homes we desire to say that the excellent effects of Dr Schenck's seasonable remedies, Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills, are particularly evident when taken by those who are injuriously affected by a change of water and diet No person should leave home without taking a supply of these safeguards along For sale by all druggists

B. Sanford won, leading their opponents between five and seven boats lengths and pulling over the course in about 12½ minutes. The Maid of Erin, Capt. Conners, was barred; it not being a working boat. The odds were heavily in favor of the Queen City crew, which got an excellent start but the winning crew settled to their work with a will and showed not only a very handsome stroke; but also the best of staying qualities, coming in with thirty-nine to the minute.

FRESCOING The Union street Methodist church has been undergoing a complete overhauling and Mr P. Ackerman of this city, has frescoed the walls and ceiling The ceilings are panelled up with beams that are painted a drab color The panels are colored a light lilac tint with tasty blue stripes around the borders. The walls are tinted a stone color. The windows have a cap in imitation of stone with a very pretty design. From this cap mouldings run down the sides A change has been made in rear of the pulpit, the pillars being taken away, and the recess made larger The arch is made with heavy mouldings that give a fine effect to the recess The pews have been painted and varnished and a new carpet has been laid A few new gas jets have been suspended from the beams in the centre The church now presents a very neat and pretty appearance. The frescoing is not elaborate, but is sufficiently so to give the church a cozy and tidy appearance. Mr Ackerman has begun the work of frescoing Music Hall The work will be a little more elaborate than that of the church, and the colors more brilliant There will be a very handsome centre piece with side panel surrounded by a heavy steel colored moulding The body of the ceiling will be colored pink, and the panels blue There will be ... steel colored ... The ante rooms will be neatly frescoed with centre piece and moulding, and the ceiling under the galleries will be made to correspond with that of the main hall We cannot give an adequate idea of the design, but as we saw it on paper we can assure our readers will be very pretty and will be done in Mr Ackerman's best style

REPORT OF COMMITTEE

The following is the report of the committee appointed to examine the hose of the fire department

BANGOR, July 30, 1877

Hon A C Hamlin Mayor of Bangor

SIR —The undersigned, a committee appointed by you under date of July 20th 1877 to examine all the leading hose of the Fire Department of this city, and report forthwith its condition to which of it is good and how much is worthless have attended to the duty assigned us and herewith report

We proceeded to examine the hose in the several localities where it is deposited, and sorted it according to our best judgment into classes according to quality In order to test the correctness of our judgment of hose examined we caused between one and two thousand feet to be tested by attaching it to the hydrant in front of the Steamer house on Harlow street under a pressure of 11 pounds Under that pressure several pieces burst which we had supposed might be depended upon to stand the severest strain of actual fire

The aggregate length of leather and linen hose which we found is 9 9.. feet Of that quantity 8 4.. feet is leather and 1 ... feet linen We have sorted the whole ... 9 ... feet into four classes viz

First—5,7.. feet fit for use in the city for fire purposes Of this quantity 5 0.. feet is leather and 700 feet is linen

Second—818 feet all leather may be repaired and made fit for fire use in the city

Third—1,320 feet, all leather is only fit for hand engine use or for hydrant on the high land where the pressure is low

Fourth—1,172 feet—1,22.. feet leather, and 250 feet linen,—is worthless for any fire purpose

Your committee cannot of course assert with any certainty that the 5,7.. feet which we have marked as No 1 will all stand the full fire pressure as we did not venture for prudential reasons, to test the whole of it, by hydrant We can only say that in the examination of the hose deemed suitable for service on the several reels and in the towers of the Steamers and Union houses, several pieces were rejected, and others substituted, leaving in our judgment, the amount named as fit for actual fire service We think that most, if not all of the No. 2 818 feet, may, with careful repairing, be made equal to No 1. We would suggest that the 1,320 feet, which we marked as No 3, be put in as good order as possible, and sold to some town for hand-engine use, where the pressure is light, compared with that given by our works The No 4 which we have marked as "worthless," should be cut up at once, and the material, couplings, rivets and leather, used to help pay for new work

Your Committee would take the liberty to make a few suggestions in relation to care of hose, etc First we found that almost all of the hose examined showed unmistakable signs of injury, resulting from being passed over by carriages and horses The cuts caused by wheels and horses shoes, and by sharp stones, where the hose has been pressed upon them by wheels of heavy teams, has in our opinion caused a very heavy loss to the city within the past few years It is well known also, that the wheels of light carriages—with their steel tires, and edges as sharp as a knife—are full as dangerous as the more ponderous double teams. Such injuries are not at first easily detected, and only come to be known in the hour of trial when the delay which is occasioned thereby, is the cause, frequently, of great loss of property. We would recommend that a few suitable light bridges for hose protection, be made, and carried on the hook and ladder carriage, for use at fires; also, that an ordinance be passed by the City Council—if one is not already in existence—prohibiting, under a suitable penalty, carriages and teams of every kind from passing over the fire hose of the city at any time.

Second We find that the hose now in use, has been and is constantly liable to injury by being laid together in large quantities in the hose tower. The towers are not high enough to allow the hose to be hung up at its full length, and it consequently must be doubled, and as we have but one tower—in old times we had three—two to three thousand feet are sometimes piled on at one time. We would suggest that the tower be made sufficiently high to take a whole length of hose. With such a tower, double the amount of hose could be hung at a time; each piece would be independent of the others; could be kept in better condition; could be quicker dried, and could be more speedily taken down and reeled in case of emergency than can be now done. There are questions as to the proper mode of oiling hose, whether the oil should be applied inside or outside, and the best kind of oil to be used, whether animal or vegetable, which we will only suggest in connection with the best care of the hose, so as to insure its greatest durability. In connection with the suggestion as to the proper care of the hose, your committee would say that we found the hose considered "fit for use" with one exception, properly cared for, that is, suitably cleaned, oiled and dried. Rubber-lined hose requires much more careful treatment than leather to insure any reasonable length of service If neglected, and allowed to remain on the reels in a wet and unclean condition, it speedily becomes worthless

Very respectfully submitted

MAINE PRESS ASSOCIATION

Their Excursion Events Scenery Etc Return and Resolutions

The Maine Press Association that met here last Friday evening started at 7 30 the next morning in a special car for Moosehead Lake, arriving at Blanchard at 11 30 A M, where they were welcomed by Hon C A Packard and Deacon Jacob Packard and several other citizens From Blanchard they rode to Greenville in the stages that were waiting for them Shortly before 3 o'clock the coaches rolled into Greenville and the party landed at the Eveleth House They dined here and afterwards proceeded to Kineo by the steamer Gov Coburn The sail occupied about two hours and was thoroughly enjoyed by the entire party

At 6 P M the steamer reached Kineo where the party put up at the Kineo House After supper the party whiled away the time until darkness in admiring the grand and inspiring scenery When night closed upon their view they repaired to the parlor of the hotel where a pleasant and social evening was passed

The Sabbath which proved to be a beautiful day was quietly spent by the excursionists at the Kineo House who found the communion needed rest From 10 to 12 A M was devoted to a social religious meeting in the parlor, conducted by Rev Dr Warren of the Christian Mirror and participated in by Rev Dr Quimby of the Gospel Banner and Rev Mr Coan of Alton N H At 4 in the evening Rev Mr Coan preached to the excursionists and other visitors

Monday opened dull and rainy but by 9 o'clock the rain ceased and the sun was out Some of the party went out fishing in front of the house but with little success The most of the party took the steamer and proceeded to North Bay, on the other side of Mt Kineo and sail up under the perpendicular side of the mountain, which here rises 800 feet directly above the steamer, while soundings at the edge of the water shows that it is even more than that below the surface The boat whistle sounded to give the party an idea of the echo After a short sail the excursionists returned to the house.

After dinner about three fourths of the party took the little steamer Day Dream (formerly a pleasure yacht owned by the Pattens of Bath) and proceeded half a mile up to the point where Kineo is ascended where they commenced the toilsome ascent Some of the ladies, perceiving a part of the distance gave up the job and awaited the return of the more successful

In the evening the party assembled in the parlor of the hotel, and had a pleasant entertainment consisting of songs by Misses Vickery and Parkins, the reading of Mark Twain's description of New England weather, and impromptu poems by Mr Elwell of the Transcript and Dr Warren of the Mirror which humorously related some of the incidents of the day The affair was unusually pleasant and successful Some of the young people remained to the plazza to watch a gathering thunder storm

Finally the excursionists took the steamer Gov Coburn and proceeded to the head of the lake and landing had a picnic dinner in a clearing in the forest Returning the steamer took the party sailed to the North East Carry where they had a fine view of Katahdin and returned to the Kineo House in season for supper

Wednesday the excursionists had another pleasant sail on the lake, visiting Spencer and Lily Bay and then proceeding to the outlet where they landed and had a collation at the Outlet House returning to the Kineo House at night In the evening there was a very pleasant entertainment at the hotel consisting of music literary mosaics by Mr Elwell of the Transcript, a poetical anonymous letter giving an account of the arrival of the ... of two original poems by Rev Mr Coan and other interesting exercises

Thursday morning the party left the Kineo House on the steamer Gov Coburn on their return dining at the Eveleth House and reaching Bangor at 7 P M and stopping at the Bangor House

The weather was pleasant during the stay of the party at Moosehead, and the excursion was voted one of the pleasantest ever had by the Maine Press Association

At a meeting of the Association held in the parlor of the Bangor House last evening, the following resolutions were unanimously passed

Resolved That the Maine Press Association on this its fourteenth annual excursion, has found in the Mt Kineo House on the shores of Moosehead Lake, a delightful retreat from the cares and labors of an ordinary profession, and the week spent amid these remote and sublime scenes of forest, lake and mountain, will ever fill a bright page in the history of the Association.

Resolved, That the Association feels itself under great obligations to Mr O A Dennen, proprietor of the Mt Kineo House, and his assistants for their uniform courtesy and kindness, and careful attention to all their wants, to Capt Thomas Robinson, of the steamer Gov Coburn, and Capt Charles Robinson, of the steamer Wm. Parker, and to the boatmen and guides who soon speeded them over the waters, and in so many ways contributed to the pleasures of the excursion, and its members extend to all their hearty thanks and their best wishes for the continued success and prosperity of this charming retreat in the woods of Maine

Resolved, That the Association feels deeply indebted to the Maine Central Railroad Company for the courtesies extended to it on this occasion, as also to the European & North American, and Bangor & Piscataquis Railroad Companies, and to Messrs, Morrison & Hunting, proprietors of the line of stages which so comfortably and safely conveyed them over the road from Blanchard to Greenville.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Association are due and are hereby tendered to Messrs. H., Baker & Co., of the Bangor House for courtesies extended, and careful attention to our wants; also to Mr. A. H. Walker, proprietor of the Eveleth House, Greenville

Resolved, That the presence of representatives of our sister Associations of Massachusetts and New Hampshire has added greatly to the pleasures of the excursion, and it is hoped that they will favor us with their company on future occasions of this kind.

Resolved, That the hearty thanks of the Association are hereby tendered to the members of the Committee of Arrangements, Messrs. Nelson Dingley, Jr., F. O. Vickery and Frank K. Smith, for their excellent management of all the details of the excursion, and also to Charles E. Nash, Treasurer of the Association, for taking upon himself the financial management, and relieving members from the necessity of repeated payments.

THE E. J. MORSE.

One of the finest ships ever built in this vicinity is the E. J. Morse now on the stocks in Joseph Oakes & Son's ship yard, in Brewer. The keel was made last November, and a crew has been at work on her since that time until the present, gradually adding to the crude frame, until now we have a noble and graceful ship The frame is all hackmatack and the deck frame, planking and ceiling is the best of hard pine She has two decks and the depth of her hold is twenty four feet and two inches, width of beam thirty eight feet and six inches, length over all two hundred and sixteen feet

The forward house contains the forecastle, galley, sail room, carpenter's shop, boys room and engine room In the engine room, which is in the after part of the forward house, will be placed an engine of ... horse power which will be connected with the windlass capstan and pumps and can be used in pumping ship, hoisting the anchor and in fact, enables four men to handle a fifteen hundred ton ship with the utmost ease Connected with this engine is a condenser, which has a condensing capacity of four hundred gallons in ten hours

The cabin is large and commodious the entrance to it is protected by a house Descending the companion way you enter the forward cabin which is finished in ash and black walnut highly polished The mates stateroom the pantry and storeroom and three spare staterooms all open into this cabin

The after cabin is very handsomely finished the panels being of ash with black walnut mouldings, with a very fine polish Between the panels are black walnut pillars with gilded corinthian capitals The captain's room and bath room lead out of this cabin A stairway also leads to the deck This cabin has a large sofa on each side, and the ... with the other furniture is upholstered with scarlet plush

Messrs Joseph Oakes & Son are the contractors Mr ... Perkins is the master carpenter and Mr ... the master joiner

The rigging ... Mr ... Harness and Angly The standing rigging all wire Messrs Eldridge & Shaw painted the cabin

The principal owners are Morse & Co E B Ames C V Lord Stetson & Co, C D Bryant Eben Trask ... Snow of this city and B D Metcalf of Damariscotta

The workmanship throughout is all of a superior order and reflects credit upon the contractor and master workmen The ship is a fine model ... and ... She will be painted a straw color with a red stripe She will be launched on Thursday next, about noon ... Capt ... B Ames of this city, who has superintended the building is to be the worthy commander of this fine craft As soon as the vessel is launched she will be towed to C G Sterns & Co's mill, where she will load with deals for Liverpool

The vessel is certainly a credit to Bangor and competent judges who have seen her pronounce her ... in every respect

The Tax Question

Mr Editor—In reading the discussion which have taken place pro and con upon the subject of the Bangor & Piscataquis Railroad extension I have been much pleased to notice that the question has assumed a prominence which it seems to me it deserves to occupy and I propose to make a few suggestions upon the topic quite aside from Railroad Extension

One of the leading writers of the day upon political economy said that the first great question of the time is tax and the Broad street merchant who declared that the second great question of to-day is how to avoid paying tax seems to be amply justified in the mind of anyone who inspects the inventory listing made up by the Assessors of Bangor this year How many of our citizens are guilty of the sin of ... in not listing in their lists of property and ... to ... their ... how many are guilty of sins of commission in transferring their stocks and vessels to non residents prior to April 1st and how many on the last days of March open accounts with Boston brokers whereby they become owners suddenly of large quantities of United States securities not taxable, which are as suddenly sold back again to the same parties before the tenth day of April

Who has a right to complain when wealthy men thus shirk their share of the public burthen? Who is injured? Is the city in its corporate capacity By no means

The city calls for a certain amount of money to meet its appropriations, and just that amount is raised by tax but when one man cheats in his taxes by the U S Bond swindle or by a colorable transfer, he simply takes so much as he saves in a wicked unjust manner out of his honest neighbor who have to pay a tax on all they possess

The merchant who is taxed on his stock in trade, the workman who is taxed upon his dwelling house and furniture, the laborer who has only a cow or a pig, finds his tax increased when his rich neighbor cheats and deceives the assessors of taxes

Probably there is no doubt but what if the amount which has been fraudulently withheld by persons of intelligence and wealth from the Assessors and Collector of Taxes since this city first loaned its credit to railroads were in a lump of pence this day returned to the City Treasury and applied to payment of interest on the railroad debt now carried by the city, the burthen would fall at once

We have been favored throughout the length and breadth of this land with a revival of religion in which Bangor has participated, but sad to say it has not reached tax-payers. What we want now is a genuine outpouring in this city of the spirit—of common honesty, and common decency For this we are thirsting more than anything else, and a few such conversions as we have indicated are of more importance to this city than the success or defeat of the railroad loan; in fact I couldn't help thinking when I saw the list of the subscribers to a fund to defeat the loan, which fund was alleged to be to prevent the increase of taxes in Bangor, of the little anecdote of the Vermont farmer who was called upon to sign a petition to the Legislature to secure more stringent laws against sheep-stealing. Looking over the names on the petition, he said to the man who was carrying around the document, "If you will guarantee me against the men who signed that petition I will take care of my own sheep."

It occurred to me that it might border upon the hypocritical to pretend to be attempting to save one's poor neighbors from high taxes now, whilst only last April one had dishonestly added to his poor neighbors' taxes by a temporary investment in U. S. bonds ...

We need something more than a mere baptism of repentance by sprinkling; a copious shower even will not suffice to wipe away the guilt, we are suffering for a deluge—not of crocodile tears for our poor neighbors weighed down by high taxes, but for our own sins in avoiding taxes by dishonest means whereby our neighbors are wronged—the result of a sorrow which brings forth fruits sweet for repentance, and whilst others bawl themselves hoarse in crying up or crying down the railroad loan, my voice shall be for the cultivation of common honesty in our tax transactions for our attempts to cheat a larger city only result in loss to our honest neighbors

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

MEGGIS AND TEE "COBBLER."

From Morris, Sons of Liberty, 1860.

BY MRS. E. TOOKER.

A soldier, weary of yorking his thread,
Sat smoking his pipe by the chimney log,
While mellowing glow from the embers red
Makes a cheering picture of him and his dog.
His wife, in shadow, moves about the room
To finish the toil with the dawn begun,
For, though with the daylight she quitted the loom,
The work of the woman is scarcely done.

Now, resting her brooms, that over and o'er
Had fled in the grip of a thrifty hand,
She summons her good-man to share the store
Of bits, ere each left the labor behind.
"This, I can keep," she murmurs, "as here I stand
I mark the sound of a sore distress
That calleth for comfort." "Pshaw," cries he,
"Tis a worthless mouse, and if to-day
He owns the pardon, 'twere well to-day."

Soon Hans and his Gretchen into the sight
Go toiling along in an earnest way,
Till he in a gleam of their lantern beholds
And his hope that is warmed by a mother's eye
Or the little brown dog, he bounds behind—
Runs, barking at nothing, as dogs will do,
Helping, he well as he may, to find
Whatever they're seeking the darkness through.

Nearer and nearer the sound is heard,
Yet flutter and falter the mother's calls,
Tears from good folk have not error,
And now they are sure the boy on that cabin
Espouse in the vanities of the world,
Trapped in the dusk by an open drain.

Strong is the helpful hand put down
To the chasm—strong and clever,
And soon in unison with the will is thrown
The light of the lantern into the ditch,
Even though it with pity is shot.
As the Cobbler is lifted to pour out,
Hans with a Christian heart and will
Shoulders the freight that is lost to sight.

From the cot-door's scene, in the morning air,
Their guest departeth, while Hans and his wife
Are full of comfort that all is well—
Is certain to reach a happy end.
Still, little they know that their kindly deed
Has offered to gratification's cup
Many drops of gall. But the seeds there found
Of good, very soon of an outside bring.

Little does the good Swiss Minister think
That he has left behind his friendly steam
Blinded by darkness, into the well,
And little does thought when they took him in,
A pitiful waif, to shelter and feed,
That they'd nurse a traitor unawares to!
Well, I drop, as manna, to every earnest,
Of a plot as yet unquickly sold.

Yet not to the cobbler, guerdon meet—
Not the cobbler's wife, nor the little brown dog,
Who lay down before at his master's feet—
When the "Cobbler" was fire of flames, began
Came blessing as first due.

"Why," quoth you,
And yet thought most lovely words effects,
To the least of ye do it, ye do it to Me."
We've clipped the parable, but worker I for Christ"

A NIGHT INVASION.

I.

(Concluded.)

We were all dismayed. To this hour I have but a confused idea of how at last she was carried back to her room and got to bed. The time sped away while we tried restoratives, sedatives, and what not. One thing soon became evident: it was useless attempting to take her further to-night; she was far too ill for it even to be thought of.

M. Adolphe decided to go with the carriage to the town of Paisley, two miles off, and come on in the morning to see what plans could then be made. I had just come down-stairs in earnest talk with Dr. Hudson, when M. Adolphe, with a face of much concern, met us.

"You must come and effect another cure," he said. "Here is a young lady who will break her heart unless you comfort her."

True enough. Lucy leant on a chair in bitter tears, the very picture of remorseful grief—which increased at the sight of Dr. Hudson. It was one of her great attractions that she was so natural, so unlike a doll-like self-consciousness. If I had been betrayed into crying, I should, at least, have flown to solitude to combat there my grief, but there she sat, with great pearls of tears rolling down her cheeks, going up at the two men with the expression of a child, and her clear eyes had the family of shedding tears without looking any the worse for them.

"Please, please, forgive me!" she implored. "I know I have nearly killed her, and it breaks my heart. I never thought what I was doing. But don't be angry with me more than you can help. I saw how vexed with me you were, and I deserved it, but oh, do please forgive me now."

"Yes, yes," said Dr. Hudson, after a manner restraining that she was quite forgiven. "We know the harm was not to blame, only this young head," laying his hand quite tenderly on Lucy's golden hair. "Taught by the wiser heart, it will find out in time what it was to learn—that in this weary world we need thought for others is necessary if we would be the bright men and women as we journey on our way. Now that question, Miss Lucy, the sooner the better, it adds to the worth even of the brightest gem of beauty."

"But that I do not know about that," interrupted M. Adolphe. "If this lovely is to lose any of its graces in the acquisition, we shall think them seldom hardly bought."

Altogether Lucy ended in being crowned the Heroine of the day.

II.

It certainly must be best that the future is a sealed book to us. How otherwise would Helen's and my united courage have been equal to opening our door to strangers that stormy night? For so it turned out that a fortnight works, in consequence of that night's work, we had Madame Adolphe as a permanent inmate, and the gentlemen occasionally. The former could not be moved, the latter stayed at the hotel at Hawley.

My sister Esther and her baby made but slow progress, so my mother could not leave her post, but Aunt Judith came over to do temporary duty for us, as although it did seem rather late in the day for us to arm ourselves with a safeguard. Aunt Judith certainly was the raddest and least suspicious of dragons, and stood a good deal at wear for Dr. Hudson, in talking to whom she dropped her stitches in knitting at a fearful rate.

She had lapses of alarm, too, lest M. Adolphe's profession of Protestantism should be only assumed, although what great harm would accrue to us if he turned out to be a Massilman, I failed to see.

She was very tender and kind to us, and devoted to Lucy, her adopted child, in whom she could see no flaw. And one day our mother managed to come over unexpectedly, to see the stranger for herself. The two gentlemen arrived nearly at the same time that day, and she made up her mind quickly that both were good, trustworthy men; a creed never swerved from afterward. They, with Madame Adolphe, one and all, seemed to lose their hearts to our dear, good little mother. And we felt we were placed on a new and pleasanter footing with our guests.

"Don't say anything about intruders," said my mother, looking like a flock of strength to lean on mentally and morally, as she sat by the invalid's bed with the doctor. "I hope our doors will always be open to wayfarers in distress. It was the storm brought you here, and we know Who sent the storm, so say nothing about obligation: we are but doing a pleasant duty in keeping you here."

What happy three weeks they turned out, after all! An atmosphere of company in the house is pleasant, giving excuse for an unlimited amount of idling, and getting up delicate little dishes, and dressing just a degree more carefully and becomingly than usual! And yet I thought I should be rather glad when our guests were once fairly gone, and mother returned, and we settled down once more, peacefully prepared to meet the trials of winter.

Well! the parting day came at last; but I must tell of a scene that took place on it.

"Oh, there! I cannot bear the look of the boxes in the hall," said Lucy, hurrying into the drawing room, where sat M. Adolphe. "Of all the dreary things, parting must be the very worst!"

"No doubt it is a very trying thing to the affections," returned M. Adolphe; "unless we can arrange it like your scissors, and part to meet again."

"Ah, but we are never likely to meet again," sighed Lucy. "We never met before, you see," she added, contritely.

"But there are ways in which it could be arranged," he said, looking at Lucy, who stood in the sunshine.

"I don't know of any, M. Adolphe. Except, indeed—the seaside! We really might do that!"

"That is one good way no doubt. You cannot think of any other?"

"Oh, yes, of course—writing! And Mme. Adolphe is going to write sometimes to Helen; so after all it is not so very bad."

"But Mme. Adolphe stays at present in England, and I go back to France. Her letters will be no good to me. Cannot you think of any way to help me? Well, if you cannot, I think I can."

The Frenchman's white teeth were shown freely under his moustache, as he continued to smile at Lucy.

"What is your way?" asked she.

That you should come back with me to France, and make me the happiest man in all the universe by becoming my wife! Don't be frightened at what I say. My brother made the very best of husbands, and I have admired and loved you ever since you warned to turn me out of the house that stormy night."

"But, oh! dear me! who was to dream of this?" said Lucy, dropping into a chair.

"You think too little of yourself, said the Frenchman, gallantly, "or you would have seen my love for you long ago, and my regard and esteem are equal to my love. Your heart is too tender, I feel sure, to put me to the distress and chagrin of refusal. This little hand, I feel sure, will give itself to me!" and taking her hand he pressed a most deferential kiss upon it.

"Oh! if you are sure you really want it. But I am so silly and unfit—perhaps I shall not make a good wife, and then it would all be disappointment."

"I am not afraid," he returned. "We will take our chance of that, if you will say I am not displeasing to you for a husband."

"No, not displeasing at all—you could not be that!" said Lucy, and then—

What happened then I have every reason to know. For Ted and Helen, with Dr. Hudson chanced to enter, and found M. Adolphe kissing, not Lucy's hand, but, "without rebuke," her face.

We all stood aghast for a moment. Amidst phials (the old-maidenly recreation of the past few) instantly discovered his presence of mind. He drew Lucy's arm within his and advanced to address us.

"Let me introduce you to the future Madame Victor Adolphe."

The exclamations of surprise, the smiles congratulations, the various emotions that followed got mixed up in a most favorable confusion, but at last I became aware that Dr. Hudson, with a look of annoyance on his face, was attacking his brother-in-law.

"I protest against this proceeding—I do, indeed," he said. "I'll never vote that you have one such excellent excuse as your love," indicating Lucy, "should call you severely to task. Until Mrs. Murray, whose hospitality we should have been the last to abuse, had returned home, I think it was unbecoming and inhuman—and I warned you so beforehand—to act as you have done."

"Mais, mon ami," said M. Adolphe, shrugging his shoulders, with a smile of triumphant unconcern, "this act was not quite premeditated. In affairs of the heart one does not always do what one intended. The seed was got too much for one, and one cannot stop to think whether Mrs. Murray is at home or not."

"The best and truest love knows no stay over itself even at the cost of misunderstanding and pain. It is there," added Dr. Hudson, fairly changing into a lighter tone, as if half ashamed of his own language, "the thing is done, only I could all to Lucy's credit—a splendid bargain. Still, I protest against the precedent. Nothing of the sort shall occur in my house again, sir, if you please, as I am responsible to Mrs. Murray for the safety of her children."

"And why would you have me then to the contrary?" I asked—but not without a terrible misgiving that Dan haunted me before.

"Because we have the laugh against him now," said M. Adolphe, stopping on with and turning to face me, every feature and gesture in full play. "Since you have kept out he has prepared to your sister Helen and been accepted! He waits until mamma comes back, I speak to Miss Lucy when she has an arm with her in the house; where lies the great difference between us? I speak a fortnight ago, and he very nearly tells me I am no gentleman for doing so, he speaks to-day, and all of a sudden everything is en regle and comme il faut. My good friend Hudson was jealous that I was the first to win my bride, he does not quite forgive me that French valour won the day a whole fortnight sooner than English prudence."

He proved to be quite true—and, so to though I was to lose Helen, I could not but be glad to welcome Dr. Hudson as a brother.

Dr. Hudson's keen discernment had quickly seen that high a wife must for a doctor's wife; long experience had taught him, too, that the ready, helpful hand and skilful aid shown to others have their origin in unselfishness and gentleness and gentle worthiness, and so his judgment and his heart went together.

The worst of all is, that my story has not one grain of a moral in it. For if I were now asked whether we unprotected girls should open our doors on stormy nights to unknown wayfarers in distress, I should feel more perplexed than ever how to answer.—Argosy.
